TOPIC THIS WEEK

Why the service-based businesses winning right now all have one thing in common: AI automation -- mode: tip-led

(Web research this week couldn't be verified -- this sandbox's outbound web fetch (WebFetch) returned `EGRESS_BLOCKED` for every domain tried, including well-known reference domains unrelated to the search results, confirming it's a sandbox-wide network restriction rather than a source-specific issue. Per the skill's verification rule, no stat could be confirmed against its source page, so none was cached or used. This week's email is written from general knowledge with no cited stat, rather than risk an unconfirmed number.)

Note for Dylan: `config.json` ? `newsletter.mailing_address` is still blank. The footer below includes the required unsubscribe link, but the mailing address needed for full CAN-SPAM compliance is missing -- worth adding before send volume grows.

EMAIL PREVIEW

Hey {{first_name}},

Here's an uncomfortable one.

The service businesses pulling ahead right now aren't smarter than everyone else.

They're not cheaper, either.

They just respond first.

Here's the thing.

Speed isn't a personality trait.

It's a system.

Old way: a lead reaches out, and it sits in an inbox until someone gets a free minute.

The AI Growth Engine's way: something answers instantly, qualifies the lead, and gets them on the calendar -- before you've even seen the notification.

Picture two service businesses. Same size. Same offer. Same price.

One replies to new leads whenever there's a free minute.

The other has something that replies the second an inquiry comes in.

Same leads. Same market.

Completely different growth curve.

That's the real gap between the businesses winning right now and the ones stuck flat -- not skill, not budget. Response time.

This works best for businesses that live and die by booked appointments -- consultations, sessions, calls.

If most of what you sell doesn't hinge on getting someone onto a calendar, this one's not for you.

Want me to put together a custom AI + marketing plan for {{business_name}}? Book a quick discovery call and I'll show you exactly where The AI Growth Engine plugs into how you already work.

P.S. -- this isn't a sales pitch, just 20 minutes to see if speed-to-lead is actually your gap right now.
